

Darrin Engel, CPDT

Darrin grew up in the small town of Manchester, Michigan, just outside of Ann Arbor—Home of the Michigan Wolverines. He started training his first dog Nahami, a St. Bernard, at the age of 6. Excited by his ability to teach dogs and with his strong love for them, Darrin trained his first Rottweiler at age 18 when he moved to Florida. He was working at Imperial Point Animal Hospital at that time. When Tim Mullally met Darrin in 1991, he was impressed with Darrin's ability to train dogs. With Tim's encouragement, Darrin began studying animal behavior and dog training professionally. In 2000 Darrin went to Indiana to take a course on Animal Behavior and was certified as a behaviorist by Perdue University. Darrin has been a member of APDT since 2001, and obtained the title of CPDT in 2003.
